ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The Cleveland Artists Foundation would like to thank the Cleveland Foundation and Program Officer Kathleen Cerveny for their belief that research and presentations focusing on Cleveland art are long overdue. Their faith in the value of the art of this region and in the ability of this organization to bring it to the attention of the public has sustained us through the organization of the symposium, Cleveland As A Center of Regional American Art and the compilation of this publication.

The Cleveland Artists Foundation also salutes the generosity of Laurel Blossom, Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Blossom and Mrs. Elizabeth Heffernan who have supported this publication in honor of their mother, Jean Vilas Blossom.

Our gratitude goes to Sandy Richert for her patience and skill in editing this publication and assisting with the symposium. Without her efforts and those of William Busta, none of this would be possible.

William Robinson, Assistant Curator of Modern Art, The Cleveland Museum of Art, has fostered and encouraged the idea of a symposium about Cleveland art. This was important in getting support for the project and seeing it through to completion.

The Ohio Humanities Council, The National Endowment for the Humanities, helped make Karal Ann Marling’s address at the City Club of Cleveland possible. Many individuals contributed financial support, time, advice, and energy. We would like to acknowledge Kenneth Bates, Frederick and Helen Biehle, Joseph Erdelac, Eleanor Gerson, James Gibans, Meredith Harper, Tom Hinson, MaryAnn Kral, Barbara Messner, Louise McCoy, Rotraud Sackerlotzky, Terry Whelan. Special thanks go to The Cleveland Museum of Art, its director and staff, for the fabulous cooperation the project received and to the Western Reserve Historical Society for providing free admission to the F.C. Gottwald and the Old Bohemians exhibition for those attending the symposium.
